

May -July

Boston's Adventures!

Article 2:

Update!

Hello again! So much has happened since my last update. I'm 5 months old and 45 pounds. I have mastered the following cues: sit, down, stay, come when called, leave it, loose leash walking, and calmly greeting new friends. Here's a usual day for me; I wake up bright and early and first thing we do in the morning is go for the walk. As a young shepherd, I have a TON of energy (so does my foster brother). So mom and mom's mom take us on a walk every morning before the heat comes. So, I can relax during the day while it's too hot for me to be out during the day. So, I'm practicing good house manners, which is very important to have as a guide dog! Then, once it's cooled down, I either go on another walk or on an outing!

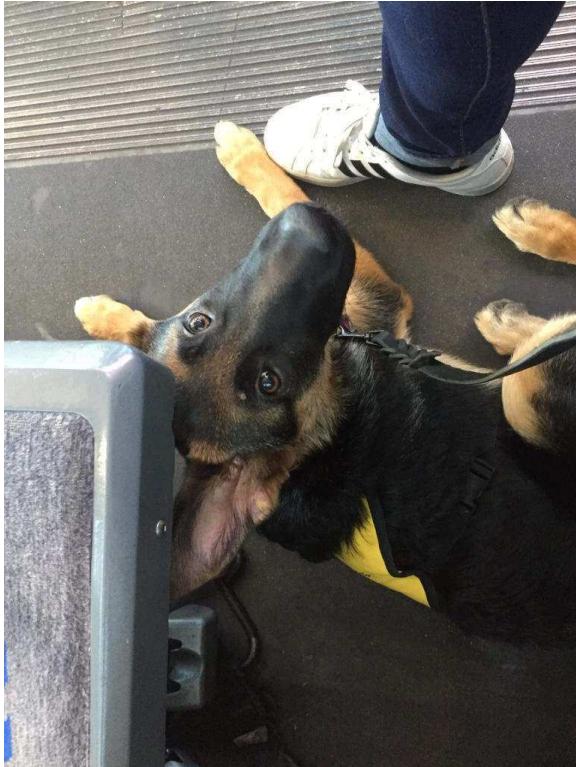

On the “job”!

Here I am at a local restaurant, since there was a decent amount of wait time before we could be seated. Mom and I took a walk around the block! I was able to see new sights and sounds!

Out and about!

I went on a very short ride on a city bus! I acted like I have been riding the bus my whole life!

Mt "brother" and I went to an pet friendly outdoor shopping center. I have a practice working with him and focusing on mom!

May -July

Obedience Class!

Now that I finished my puppy kindergarten class at GDA, I have to go to an outside obedience class. We attend one at our local park and, man! let me tell you about the distractions I have to work around! Not only is other dogs, there's birds, horses, trains, cars, and lots of people! It's a lot of work but I handle it all like a pro!

Happy 4th!

I stayed home for the holiday
but before we settled in for the night,
I got to walk around the neighborhood and see everyone!

May -July

Just six week difference between the two pictures! I'm growing like a weed!

May -July

As always, Thank you so much for being so generous and sponsoring me! I really hope that you like my updates because I sure do love sharing my journey! Until, next time!

Love, Boston!