

Hi Family!

Just wanted to give another "pupdate" on how I'm doing in guide dog college. I haven't quite made it to Downtown LA yet, but I did get the chance to explore Pasadena again. As I cruised through the streets of Pasadena, I stayed focused on my job—guiding my instructor safely through the city. Sometimes the city's energy can be a little overwhelming. Thankfully, my instructor does a great job of helping me build my confidence every step of the way.

I've been keeping busy with my training, and let me tell you—these trips are always a blast! Burbank is still my favorite spot. The freshman class is gearing up for their traffic training, so we've been putting in some serious prep work. One of the highlights? The obstacle course we train on before diving into traffic lessons. Guess who got to show the instructor how it's done? Yep, that's right—yours truly! I guided her through the whole thing, and my instructor said I was fantastic! Can't wait to tackle more of these training challenges.

It's been a series of fun adventures, and I can't wait to see what's next on the journey! Miss you but having a good time.

Wags & kisses!
